PAST YEARS

Since we started these workshops in 2000 we have worked towards performing on stage in front of parents and friends using scripted material and activities from all kinds of creative endeavours.

Included were many acting games and programs designed to encourage self confidence, foster leadership, create community feeling, and develop the many skills necessary to perform on stage.

We have told the story of the building of Mount Tabor Playhouse originally as a church, learned how young people less fortunate than ourselves live in other countries, and exhibited how to stage a number of short plays both from script work and through creative cooperation to produce a cohesive presentation. Last year we put all the young people on the spot by performing a variety of activities many of which were presented with no prior preparation. Many of the young people really came to life and, I'm sure, surprised many parents and friends with their spontaneous creativity.

THIS YEAR

This year, we will be combining some scripted material with a number of creatively built scenes to form our version of Robert Browning's 'The Pied Piper'. I cannot say for sure what the final outcome will be, but I assure you it will be entertaining. The workshop members themselves will have a chance to shape the storyline to include family situations, much interaction with others, and various plot ideas from 'The Pied Piper' poem.

Basically, what the young people will be doing is a great deal of creative thinking and acting within a story outline. We will also be incorporating some song and dance as well as other activities based on the participants' interests and talents.

There will be two performances on stage at Mount Tabor Playhouse on Friday, August 26. The first will start at 10:30 am and the second at 7:30 pm.

Relatives and friends of participants are cordially invited as well as members of the public.

There is no charge.

Registration Deadline: July 22, 2011
